

City of Boise and State Officials are playing a reckless game trying to attract louder military fighter jets to current urban setting, while not having alternative plans to prevent negative environmental and economic impacts

Airport Noise

- Airport Impact Area is growing
- Proposed Military Fighters Jets are 8 to 16 times louder than current Idaho Air National Guard Aircraft (IDANG)
- Identified fixes (home and easement purchases) not being implemented as planned

Economics

- NSFRU home cost estimate is $236 thousand to purchase, demolish and relocate families
- 2020 419 F15 Homes = $98.9 million
- 2023 913 F35 Homes = $215.5 million
- Officials promote IDANG economic benefits while excluding negative cost impacts

Homes

- Growing number of impacted homes now officially considered “Not Suitable For Residential Use” (NSFRU)
- 2006 = 40 Homes > 2016 = 105 Homes > 2020 F15 projection = 419 Homes > 2023 F35 estimate 913 Homes
- Home purchases not budgeted or funded at this time
- Will the city really ever buy, demolish and relocate NSFRU homes and families?

Alternatives Not Considered

- Requesting quieter non-fighter military aircraft to extend IDANG’s mission
- Extension of existing 3rd military south runway (reduce noise impact 90 percent)
- Relocating Idaho Air National Guard to Mountain Home Air Force Base (lowest cost alternative)
- Alternatives not included as Noise Abatement Measures in Noise Studies
- Above Alternatives are not committed to in BOI Master Plans or Capital Budgets
